EIRINI ZORMPA

EXPERIENCE

2016–2020

PhD Candidate
Max Planck Institute for Psycholinguistics
📍 Nijmegen, NL

In my PhD, I research what people remember from conversations and how that changes as a result of speaking as opposed to listening. My research uses in-person and online behavioural experiments as well as eye-tracking methods.

2016

Graduate Research Assistant
Reading University
📍 Reading, UK

I worked on two projects, one on prospective memory and one on bilingualism. My responsibilities included recruiting and testing participants using EEG and transcribing narratives of Greek-English bilingual children.

2013-2014

Teacher of English
Mingiani-Prevyzi Foreign Language School
📍 Serres, GR

I taught English to primary school children, aged 8 to 12. My responsibilities included developing the curriculum, delivering the classes, creating and grading tests, and communicating with the parents.

EDUCATION

2014–2015

University of Reading
MSc in Language Sciences (Awarded distinction)
📍 Reading, UK

2009–2013

Aristotle University of Thessaloniki
BA in English Language and Literature (1st Class grade)
📍 Thessaloniki, GR

SELECTED EVENT ORGANISING EXPERIENCE

2018–2020

Open Science Community Nijmegen
Co-founded community advocating for open science in Nijmegen and organised events, e.g. a Lightning Talks event and a ReproducibiliTea journal club. Content creator for the website and newsletter.

2018–2020

R-Ladies Nijmegen chapter
Co-founded local R-Ladies chapter with 300+ members, promoting gender diversity in the R community. I was involved in organising and advertising our workshops on, e.g., data visualisation and literate programming.

2018–2020

Pint of Science NL
Organiser for 3-day science communication event bringing science into Nijmegen pubs. I helped with inviting speakers and audience engagement.
